

LITURGICAL MUSICIANS

Music played in the church should be RELIGIOUS MUSIC ONLY reflecting the sacredness of the building. If you wish to have a 'favourite song' played during the funeral rites, it could be played in the home before the coffin leaves for the church – this is often more practical and more personal. If there is a cremation a 'favourite song' can be played at the crematorium.

Below is a list of some liturgical musicians who regularly sing in churches. This is only for guidance and you are not bound by this list. You should contact the musician yourself and discuss their musical repertoire and expenses.
